In August of 2005, on a visit to Paris to celebrate the birthday of sculptor Alain Kirili, singer Thomas Buckner and flutist Jérôme Bourdellon gathered with Kirili at his studio to record these duo improvisations in the presence of his group of sculptures entitled "Totem". Both musicians are longtime collaborators with Alain Kirili, performing most recently in a concert at the Theatre du Palais Royal in Paris celebrating the opening of an installation of these sculptures in the Jardin du Palais Royal. The music is a spontaneous response to and interaction with the sculpture.
